SAILOR ATTACKS POLICEMAN WITH BOTTLE

Clubs in the hands of Policemen Barney Keenan were trumps over bottles in the hands of Leo McKasson, a sailor from the submarine base, in a sharp battle that took place on State street after about 1:45 o'clock on Saturday night, when the sailor balked about going any farther toward police headquarters to be locked up.
 Officer Keenan, his own head bathed in blood from four or five cuts, landed his man at the police station with several scalp wounds from which the blood flowed freely. Dr. Patrick Cassidy sewed the wounds of both men up, and the policeman was back on duty on Sunday, while the sailor spent Saturday night and Sunday in a cell to wait for the Monday morning police court.
 Earlier in the afternoon the policeman had his suspicions aroused when he saw a man in overalls making trips into Mrs. Caron's rooming house on Front square. The man was out of saloons. The officer suspected that the man in overalls was a camouflaged sailor and reported his suspicions to Chief Cassidy. Linton, the superintendent. The chief directed Officer Keenan to go to the Caron's house with a member of the naval patrol and search the place.
 There in a room they found three sailors, one of whom was McKasson, who had changed into his regular navy clothes from the overalls he had been wearing. At the arrival of the officers McKasson jumped out a back window into the yard, but the other two sailors were arrested and taken to police headquarters, along with two pints of whiskey and about half a dozen bottles of beer found in the room.

 Later in the afternoon Officer Keenan saw McKasson on the street and arrested him. The navy man went along well enough for a while, but when the green lights of the police station came into view he made a desperate and vicious assault upon the police officer with a bottle that he pulled from his pocket unexpectedly.
 The first blow broke the bottle on the back of the policeman's head, and the sailor then used the jagged remnant that remained in his hand in vicious jabs that inflicted three or four more wounds, before the policeman could get away from him.
 The other two men arrested in connection with the case were held over night at police headquarters and taken to the submarine base on Sunday morning by a naval guard. They gave their names as William Rogers and Michael Nolan, but neither, it is understood, gave his real name.

FORECLOSURE SUITS TRIED BEFORE SUPERIOR COURT
 There was a partial hearing in one foreclosure proceeding of the Marine Savings Bank of New London against John J. Giney et al. in a short calendar session of the superior court in this city on Friday morning, with Judge W. M. Maguire presiding. The case was continued, because a creditor of the estate had not been notified of the hearing. The property which foreclosure is sought is located in Williams street, New London, and the bank's claim is for $1,041. The property is valued at $1,800.
 Foreclosure judgment for $900 was granted in the case of Domenico Ventura against Jacob E. Beckwith, both of East Lyme, on a parcel of land in East Lyme. The mortgage on the property was given on Sept. 15, 1916, for $900.
 Other short calendar motions disposed of at the session were as follows: Howard, adm. vs. E. Riden, Maynard vs. Redden and Williamson vs. Redden. Judgment on demurrer sustained, went off.
 In the motion that non suit be opened and bond fixed in the case of Peterson vs. Halpern, the judge took the papers.

 An order of notice to Rachel Fassler was granted in the case of Busnell vs. Hendrick, et al.

FRENCH ORPHAN WRITES TO ART ASSOCIATION
 The November meeting of the Norwich Art Students' Association was held in Slater hall Friday evening, Nov. 15th, having been postponed from Monday.
 In the absence of the president, Mrs. Birge, Miss Lucas, the vice president, presided. After the usual reading of reports, the treasurer reported that a Liberty bond of $50 has been bought on recommendation of the executive committee.
 The resignations of Miss Olive Hunt and Mrs. E. C. Burnham were read and accepted.
 Miss Gulliver read a letter from one of the French orphans adopted by the association which translated from the French, reads in part as follows:
 It is some time since I received the money sent to me in the name of your society. I am anxious to thank you and your association once again for what you have done for me.
 I am having a very good vacation. I have many friends, but unfortunately this year I cannot play tennis nor go boating or bathing, for past winter I had scarletina and the doctor has forbidden me all violent exercise. I study English with a young American lady who has come here with her little baby to spend the summer. I draw a good deal. I make one sketch a day either water color or crayon, for sure. I am a student of an artist and then I study French with a college professor.
 It is fair and warm, every one is happy and this bright weather and particularly because the war is so good, thanks to the brave Americans who fight so well.
 Mamma and I are wondering what we are going to do in October. Cannon are thundering all the time in Paris, hence it seems almost impossible for us to return. We should always be anxious when one of us and of the world war. At 10:30 o'clock I have to go to the hospital. I am going to take one or two private lessons a week. I thank you very much for your letter. I shall go to Paris when I receive letters from America.
 If you have any relatives or friends in France in the army you might give them our address for news. I have large camps of American soldiers. If they ever come into one of these camps, we should be happy to have them come to see us.
 I beg you, dear mademoiselle, to give my grateful and affectionate regards to all the members of your association.

SIMONE JARDIE
 The aux Moines, Morbihan, France, August, 1918.
 It had been decided to send a small number of French orphans to America as a Christmas present. The collection was taken for this purpose. It was voted to make this sum $20 supplementary from the treasury.
 It had been decided that the programs for this busy winter should be simplified and consist of the readings of published articles rather than the members of the association. The decision Miss Eunice Gulliver read a most interesting article from the October Yale Review of Reims, France, by Gale Adams, an architect of the Princeton quadrangle and the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. Miss Gulliver remarked that the decision of the program committee to have the members of the association read articles from the October Yale Review of Reims, France, by Gale Adams, an architect of the Princeton quadrangle and the Cathedral of St. John the Divine. Miss Gulliver remarked that the decision of the program committee to have the members of the association read articles from the October Yale Review of Reims, France, by Gale Adams, an architect of the Princeton quadrangle and the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

SOLENN THANKSGIVING MASS AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH
 "Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory." I Cor. xv. 57, the text from which Rev. Myles P. Galvin preached at the solemn high mass in St. Patrick's church, was the inspiration of the thanksgiving service. At 7:30 the rector, Rev. John H. Broderick, spoke on the theme uppermost in all minds and thoughts, while at 8 the Te Deum and the Star Spangled Banner were sung by the jun choir. Prof. Frank L. Farrell directing, the congregation of 2,000 standing during this inspiring period following the regular service.

Orders had been received from Bishop Nolan that every church in the diocese was to have a solemn mass of thanksgiving Sunday next, making the reception of the Eucharist an act of thanksgiving for the great boon of peace. It is the wish of the priests, he said, that every man, woman and child in the parish receive communion between now and Christmas with the same grateful intention.
 Throughout the day the three priests did not forget to urge their people to give as generously as possible toward the fund for the united war work, even though not called upon individually by the canvassers, stating that contributions might be left at headquarters in the Thayer building.
